

- European societies have been facing significant challenges, such as a decline in citizen engagement with democratic processes, an increase in international flows of migrants, and high levels of hate crime;
- The project Children's Voices for a new Human Space (CVS, <https://www.cvs-project.eu/>) is based on the idea that participation in democratic societies is essential to reduce the negative impact of these trends, and that young people have to be encouraged to think about the environmental, social and economic problems affecting their lives.
